

www.npad-inc.com

Community Design Project

Newark, NJ

PROJECT NAMES:
Good Community Project for Vocational, Business, and Community Workshops Project

PROJECT OWNER/ CLIENT
Fairleigh Dickinson University
The Mansion Campus
School of Theological Education
285 Madison Ave
Madison, NJ 07940

CONSTRUCTION COST
$10 Million

PROJECT SERVICES
Program Development
Community Design

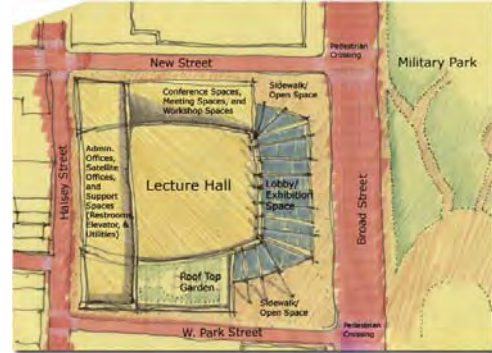

PROJECT DESCRIPTION

The project involves approximately 81,000 square feet of a new community building design within the heart of downtown Newark.

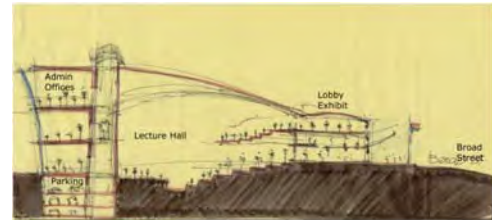

The project was part of a community design lecture with Theological Students that involved a program for 3,000 students including the development of a Business and Professional Training Center.

The goal of the design was to create a space that brings people together from 13 public high schools in Newark to engage in career seminars, internship career fairs, literacy program for non-English speaking students, computer workshops, public health awareness, business development and volunteerism development.

Ultimately, the intent was to address urban ministry as a reshaping tool for urban redevelopment, bring the church and community together.

Site Plan

Sectional Perspective